Knowing the difference between right and wrong

Read the situations where children are faced with a moral choice.

1. You are playing football with your friends. You are all using Joe's football. Joe won't let Freddie play with his football, so now Freddie is left out of the game and has nobody to play with. What could you do?
2. Freya has a brand new toy in her tray. You all know that it is there because she showed it to you before school and you watched her put it away in the tray. She will not let anyone else use it, but you and your friends really want a go. It's playtime and there is nobody in the classroom. That's when Amber suggests that a few of you go into class and take the toy out of Freya's tray. Everyone seems to think this is a good idea. What could you do?
3. Riley has not finished the maths problems that your teacher set and is finding them a bit tricky. Now Riley has to stay in at playtime to finish the maths and your teacher has asked if anyone can stay in to give Riley a hand. You were really looking forward to playing with your friends. What could you do?

Suggest possible different solutions to each of the situations.

Which solution do you think most people would choose?

Which solution do you think is right to choose and how did you know this?

Have you seen a cartoon where a character has an angel on one shoulder urging him/her to do the right thing and a devil urging him/her to do the wrong action?

Choose one of the situations: Draw a person with an angel telling them to do the right thing and a devil telling them to do the wrong thing.
