

Making Circuits!

We've been learning about electricity in our science topic this half term. During our lessons, we've been building a variety of circuits with different components and developed our own scientific investigation.

We found that when adding more components to our circuits they become less effective, unless we use more batteries to increase the voltage!

