

Thursday 17th September - Science

Today we were learning about friction as part of our forces topic. We investigated the impact different surfaces had on the amount of friction placed on a toy car when it travelled down a ramp. We measured how far the car travelled on paper, foam, material, polystyrene and grass. We talked about variables and the importance of a fair test.

The grass and foam provided the most friction and the polystyrene provided the least.