

A close-up photograph of a large pile of white, irregularly shaped salt crystals. The crystals are piled on a light-colored wooden surface, which is visible on the right side of the frame. The background is dark, making the white crystals stand out. The text is overlaid on the center of the image.

Making Crystals

In science, we dissolved salt in water to form a solution. We then left the solution to evaporate in order to retrieve the solid.

