

London's Burning!

In our Design and Technology lesson last week, we made houses to represent the houses in London back in 1666. Today we enjoyed watching what happened to the houses when the bakery on pudding lane caught fire.

This activity helped us to understand why fire spread so easily back then with the buildings being so close together, the materials they were built from, the wind and the lack of water and fire fighters. However, unlike London in 1666, we had our very own trained fire fighter on the scene to put the fire out quickly and safely. Thank you Mr Medlycott!
