

Science—Investigating the effects of air resistance.

We made two para-chutes, one larger than the other.

We used the same weight, same material and the same string to make a fair test.

We dropped them from the same height at the same time.

We observed which parachute hit the ground first.

We saw that the smaller parachute hit the ground first because there was less air resistance pushing up on its surface.

