

Our science topic this half-term has been Evolution, in today's lesson we've been learning about a pioneer of Evolution: Charles Darwin. Today, we learned how Darwin studied finches and theorised how they had evolved to live on different islands. We used different objects to act as beaks and tried picking up different types of seeds. I helped us to see how birds with specialised might have evolved to survive on each island.

Darwin's Finches