

Acorn Class had a fantastic time taking part in a hands-on science experiment! They investigated how a solid changes when it warms up and enjoyed observing the transformation of a wax crayon. The children explored the different marks and textures they could make when the crayon was a firm, solid stick compared to when it softened and became more paint-like.

