

PSHE

Today we had a PSHE lesson to help the children understand the importance of staying safe whilst online. To do this we played a game of Guess Who- the class against their teacher! As we played the game, unknown to the children, I was lying about the person I had chosen. When the children realised this at the end, they were enraged! We discussed how easy it was for me to lie about the different things they asked about my character, and how easily they believed me too. It really hit home for them how they can't always believe everything people may tell them online!
